

Public Speaking – Embrace your talent

Apply your individual talents and create genuine work happiness

Do you want to know why most people ask themselves:

“how come other people don't do like I do – how hard can it be?”

By gaining a deep understanding of your own individual talents and the individual talents of your employees, employers and even the people you are involved with on a more private and personal level, you will know exactly how to put your talents to work and be more effective in doing so.

After being introduced to your specific talents, your company and work place will know a mutual “talent language” which enables a whole different way of approaching projects and co-operation strategies.

Create value at work

After being introduced to your specific talents, your company and work place will know a mutual “talent language” which enables a whole different way of approaching projects and co-operation strategies.

With this specialized awareness your teams will be placed in strategical functions within projects that their talents are perfectly suited for.

And you know as well as I do, that your effectiveness increases when you spend time doing what you love and are good at.

Your team works the exact same way.

About Iris Engelund

For more than 10 years I have worked strategically with both public and private enterprises and companies.

I help leaders and teams reach their wanted destinations and goals by focusing specifically on individual talents among the team members.

This approach enables the organization to optimize their internal work processes and understand how to maximize their internal effectiveness through the human potential that is already available there.

I am available for speaking sessions, individual- and team coachings and leadership coachings.
